Dignity of the Human Person

Each person is made 'in the image and likeness of God.' Thus it follows that 'every person's life and dignity must be respected and supported from conception until the end of their natural life on earth.'

Caritas in Action

Respect for the human person proceeds by way of respect for the principle that "everyone should look upon his neighbour (without any exception) as 'another self,' above all bearing in mind his life and the means necessary for living it with dignity."
CCC 1931

St. Maximillian Kolbe

Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you.
Jeremiah 1:5

Then God said,
'And now we will make human beings; they will be like us and resemble us.'
So God created human beings, making them to be like himself.
Genesis 1:26-27

Family and Community

‘the family, in which the various generations come together and help one another grow wiser and harmonise personal rights with the other requirements of social life, is the foundation of society.’

Gaudium et Spes

The vocation of humanity is to show forth the image of God and to be transformed into the image of the Father's only Son. This vocation takes a personal form since each of us is called to enter into the divine beatitude; it also concerns the human community as a whole.

CCC 1877

The Holy Family

So in Christ we, though many form one body and each member belongs to all the others. We have different gifts according to the gift given to each of us
Romans 12: 5-6

You shall love your neighbour as yourself

A community needs a soul if it is to become a true home for human beings. You, the people, must give it this soul.

Solidarity and the Common Good

Promoting the common good cannot be pursued by treating each individual separately and looking for the highest 'total benefit', in some kind of utilitarian addition.

Because we are interdependent, the common good is more like a multiplication sum, where if any one number is zero then the total is always zero.

If anyone is left out and deprived of what is essential, then the common good has been betrayed.

Choosing the Common Good

“Because we are interdependent, the common good is more like a multiplication sum, where if any one number is zero then the total is always zero. If anyone is left out and deprived of what is essential, then the common good has been betrayed.”

Choosing the Common Good

St. Therese of Lisieux

If one part suffers, every part suffers with it; if one part is honoured, every part rejoices with it.

I Corinthians 12:26

And the King will answer them, ‘Truly, I say to you, as you did it to one of the least of these my brothers, you did it to me.’

Matthew 25:40

The many situations of inequality, poverty and injustice, are signs not only of a profound lack of fraternity, but also of the absence of a culture of solidarity. New ideologies, characterized by rampant individualism, egocentrism and materialistic consumerism, weaken social bonds, fuelling that “throw away” mentality which leads to contempt for, and the abandonment of, the weakest and those considered “useless”. In this way human coexistence increasingly tends to resemble a mere do ut des (I give so that you may give) which is both pragmatic and selfish.

Rights and Responsibilities

Man has the right to live. He has the right to bodily integrity and to the means necessary for the proper development of life, particularly food, clothing, shelter, medical care, rest and finally the necessary social services. In consequence, he has the right to be looked after in the event of ill health; disability stemming from his work; widowhood; old age; enforced unemployment; or whenever through no fault of his own he is deprived of the means of livelihood.'

Pacem in Terris

The right to live involves the duty to preserve one's life; the right to a decent standard of living, the duty to live in a becoming fashion; the right to be free to seek out the truth, the duty to devote oneself to an ever deeper and wider search for it. ...Every basic human right draws its authoritative force from the natural law, which confers it and attaches to it its respective duty. Hence, to claim one's rights and ignore one's duties, or only half fulfil them, is like building a house with one hand and tearing it down with the other.

Pacem in Terris

St. Vincent de Paul

Seek justice, rescue the oppressed, defend the orphan, plead for the widow.

Isaiah 1:16

Speak up for those who cannot speak for themselves, for the rights of all who are destitute. Speak up and judge fairly; defend the rights of the poor and needy.

Proverbs 31:8-9

A link has often been noted between claims to a "right to excess", and even to transgression and vice, within affluent societies, and the lack of food, drinkable water, basic instruction and elementary health care in areas of the underdeveloped world and on the outskirts of large metropolitan centres. The link consists in this: individual rights, when detached from a framework of duties which grants them their full meaning, can run wild, leading to an escalation of demands which is effectively unlimited and indiscriminate.

Option for the Poor and Vulnerable

‘The Church's love for the poor ... is a part of her constant tradition.’ This love is inspired by the Gospel of the Beatitudes, of the poverty of Jesus, and of his concern for the poor. Love for the poor is even one of the motives for the duty of working so as to ‘be able to give to those in need.’ It extends not only to material poverty but also to the many forms of cultural and religious poverty.

Stewardship of God's Creation

We are agreed today that the earth is essentially a shared inheritance, whose fruits are meant to benefit everyone. For believers, this becomes a question of fidelity to the Creator, since God created the world for everyone. Hence every ecological approach needs to incorporate a social perspective which takes into account the fundamental rights of the poor and the underprivileged.

The Dignity of Work

For the Church work is seen as a continuance of the gift of Creation whereby we are 'co-creators of Gods world and work is part of our contribution.'

Work is also seen as something which brings dignity to the human person as it is the means 'of providing for his life and that of his family, and of serving the human community.'

Dignity of Work: Catholic Social Teaching
CCC 2428

In work, the person exercises and fulfils in part their potential inscribed in their nature. The primordial value of labour stems from each person themselves, its author and its beneficiary. Work is for humankind, not humankind for work. Everyone should be able to draw from work the means of providing for their life and that of their family, and of serving the human community. CCC 2428
